Lane Bryant task force continues ongoing investigation

The Tinley Park Police Department continues its investigation into the Feb. 2, 2008 murders of five women at the Lane Bryant store in Brookside Marketplace, working in coordination with longstanding local, state, and federal law-enforcement partners.

“This investigation has never stopped,” Tinley Park Police Chief Tom Tilton said. “Our detectives and partners continue to evaluate leads, review evidence, and apply available investigative and forensic tools as they evolve. This work occurs every day.”

The multi-agency task force includes Tinley Park detectives and analysts, the Illinois State Police, the Illinois Attorney General’s Office, the Will County State’s Attorney’s Office, and the FBI’s Chicago Field Office. These partnerships have ensured continued access to national-level investigative resources, forensic expertise, and specialized support.

“With the help of new technology, access to national-level assets and new forensic capabilities, we are committed to solving this crime.” Tinley Park Village Manager Pat Carr said.

Village officials have consistently supported the investigation by ensuring the Tinley Park Police Department has the resources necessary for evidence testing, analysis, and investigative follow-up.

“We’re more determined than ever to solving this case,” Mayor Michael Glotz said. “Our diligence has never wavered, nor has our passion for seeking justice for the women we lost that day.”

Due to the sensitive and ongoing nature of this investigation, the Tinley Park Police Department and its task force partners will not comment further on investigative details.
